

Yoga Study for Social Anxiety Disorder

Investigators at the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health & University of Toronto are conducting a study investigating the effect of a specific type of yoga on symptoms of anxiety in people with social anxiety disorder.

You may be eligible to participate if you are/have:

- Between the ages of 18-65 years
- A primary diagnosis of Social Anxiety Disorder
- Currently experiencing clinically significant social anxiety symptoms
- Free of significant physical illness
- Not currently on any medications, or on stable medications for at least 8 weeks prior to starting yoga

Over an 8-week period, participants will take part in a structured yoga program for two 1-hour sessions each week. There will then be a 3-month follow-up phase.

Medication management will remain with the patient's primary health care physician, or can be overseen by the study physician for the duration of the study.
